Carefully Compiled Compendium of News and Personal Mention Relating to the Churches and the Benevolent and Charitable Religious Societies.

Never before in the history of the Christian church have the young people done as much for the advancement of the kingdom of God as they do today. Wherever the English language is spoken young Christian workers have banded themselves together for systematic and intelligent work.

Probably the latest organization of this nature is the Luther league, and in phenomenal success it resembles its predecessors. One of its most earnest workers is Rev. E. L. Miller, of our city, and the Evangelical Lutheran churches are keeping him on the wing to lecture on the movement and attend conventions. At present there are thirteen centers in Pennsylvania, around which cluster the local leagues. Last year, at the annual state convention, states to meet at Harrisburg on Nov. 22 and organize a national league. Rev. E. L. Miller is president of the committee, and will leave next Wednesday for the state capitol to aid in effeeting a national organization. This week the reverend gentleman has addressed large audiences in Brooklyn, New York and Philadelphia.

Miss Fannie G. Fuller is accomplishing great good among the Slavonie population of Peckville. She has charge of the kindergarten, where the little foreign pupils are taught the English language. Two months ago this school was opened. When first the teacher they could not speak a word of English, but today, after only two months tuition, they are able to understand their instructor and converse with her. All their education is carried on in the English language, and the children are carrying the language to their homes A night school has also been started, where from forty to fifty of these peo ple meet to learn the language of the country, and on Saturday afternoon twenty young girls assemble in the school room to learn how to sew. this work is done by Miss Fuller. Rev S. C. Logan, D. D., superintendent of the work among the foreign population J. M. Hughes, sergeant major of the Thirof the valleys, believes than an excellent field for missionary activity is now open in this vicinity, but the funds and qualified missionaries are wanting. The Peckville church has prospered very greatly. Last December it was organized with only nineteen members and of Peckville, now there are forty-nine communicants under the pastorage of Rev. John Klusack. The work done in Peckville is a practical solution of the problem of foreign population. It is to teach them the English language and bring them in contact with our civilizing and christianizing influences.

Active Women.

The women of the Green Ridge Presbyterian church have decided to raise funds to pay for the cushions that have recently been put in the church. The Ladies' Aid society of the Green Ridge Baptist church will serve a sup-per next Wednesday evening. The pro-ceeds are for the benefit of the church.

The Woman's society of the Holy Trinity Lutheran church has resolved to put in steam heat. The work will be begun soon and is expected to add greatly to the comfort of worshipers.

'The Ladies' Aid society of the Asbury Methodist Episcopal church will hold a fair next Wednesday evening. Fancy work and useful articles will be for sale and refreshments served.

Last evening a donation party was held in the Green Ridge Presbyterian church, under the management of the ladies. All members were asked to bring to the church any garments that were not used at home and other contributions they chose to donate. These were then carefully packed and forwarded to a mission station in the south, where the Sunday school scholars were so poor that they had no clothing fit to put on to attend divine service. Last year this act of char ity was done before and the thankful words sent in return by the recipients were very touching. Cuft and Culture.

Henry R. Davies will address the young people of the Jackson Street Baptist church on "Yellowstone Park" next Friday evening. William Price, who recently has been assigned charge of the Bible class, is very successful. The members of the class ar well pleased with the assignment The juvenile choir of the Westminster church is preparing a sacred cantata, "Bethlehem," which will be rendered about Christmas time, Rezeleel Davies is conductor.

Ross F. Wicks, the youngest lecturer on the American platform, will give one of his talks next Tuesday evening in the St. David's hall, under the auspices of the Washburn Street Presbyterian church. Rev. Jennette Olmstead, formerly state perance union of the state of Ohio, will lecture on Dec. 12 in the Puritan Congre-gational church. The subject will be, "The Ideal and Social Life."

Rec D. C. Hughes D.D., conducts a class in the rooms of the Jackson Street Baptist church every Monday evening. The class is largely attended and the young people highly appreciate the lectures of the doctor on the Epistle to the Hebrews. The public at large are invited to attend. The teachers of the St. David's kindergarten are preparing an entertainment that will soon be given the public in the school rooms. The programme will be rendered by the children of the school, and the people at large will have an op-portunity to learn the kind of work done in the kindergarten. Parents who have but a vague idea of this work should attend, and be thoroughly convinced that the instruction given the little folks in this school is both interesting and edifring

Last Sunday afternoon the Sunday school of the First Congregational church held an interesting session and ably rendered a programme of singing and re-citing. The chair was occupied by D. D. Evans, superintendent,

The young people of the Elm Park church are doing very good work in their monthly literary meetings. These gatherings have become a power in the re-ligious life of the younger members of the hurch, whereby their intellectual acquirements as well as their religious sen-timents are aided. Well prepared papers are being read and discussed. The com-mittee in charge has done efficient work and the interest taken by the members is all that one could wish. It is the aim of the executive to combine the social, religious and intellectual, and so far their efforts have been very successful.

"Why, it's hardly worth while to print It without but some of the other papers might get hold of it and scoop you. I know it happened, for a friend of mine saw it and told me of it at the supper table a little while ago. He was walking along Clark street this afternoon when a man ran out of the clothing store and darted down the street as fast as he could go. Two seconds later the proprietor of the store ran out bareheaded and followed him, yelling at the top of his voice: 'Stop thief!' 'Stop thief!' A policeman caught sight of the fugitive and drew his revolver to shoot him, when the bareheaded man bawled out: 'Shoot him in te legs! Te coat and vest ish mine!" "And your friend said he saw all that,

Gross Ignorance Exposed. Many Amusing Anecdotes That Were

New York, Nov. 16. While the political fight just closed in New York was the most earnest ever fought, there were side lights of humor thrown upon it that livened up the situation and made it more bearable to leaders and people. The humors of the campaign were many and varied, and the stories told by the orators were from stale to side-splitting, but were usually well adapted to the crowds to whom they were told. Will Culkins, in the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette tells some of them. He says that Chauncey M. Depew was, of course, the prime story-teller of the campaign, though not a few others tried themselves at funny business. At one station at which Depew's special train stopped he displayed his ready repartee, when some one in the crowd interrupted him by shouting, "What about the New York Central railroad?" "I'm president of it," responded Depew, "but I can't help that. When I came here I didn't have a penny, and if I had spent my time loafing around, interrupting speakers and voting the Democratic ticket I suppose I wouldn't be any better off today than you are." "Speaking of railroads," said Mr. De-"they are not making as much money this year as they did during the World's Fair, and that reminds me that I was in Chicago last year and met Christopher Columbus, 'You find things pretty much changed in the last four Having previously finely minced a quanhundred years, Mr. Columbus,' I remarked. A TROLLEY CHAIR.

Chicago Man Finds a New Application for Electricity. A late electric device is a chair to run on a trolley wire. A man can sit in this chair and fly through the air at the rate of thirty miles per hour, provided he does not slip his trolley, in which event he would be likely to come to grief. The trolley chair was originally invented for the purpose of enabling judges to follow a horse race around the track. Richard E. Sherman, of Chicago, is the Inventor. The intention is to suspend the car upon wire three-fourths of an inch in diameter. No. 16 copper wire being used to carry the the current of 110 volts, and the supporting wire being suspended from wooden poles at the side of the track.
